Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL)

This CPD programme is an introduction to CLIL – a dual-focused educational approach for teaching academic subjects through an additional language, thus simultaneously teaching content and language. You will be shown why the employment of CLIL in education plays an integral role in the promotion of 21st-century skills, including interpersonal, communication and language skills as well as cultural sensitivity. You will also learn why its use is considered to be essential for both ‘the teacher and school of the future’.

Completing this course will help you develop a working understanding of successfully integrating CLIL into your own teaching. You will learn how to plan and deliver your subject lessons so as to include dual learning outcomes for both language development and subject learning.

If you are a subject teacher, completing this course will give you a deeper understanding of your students’ language needs and will enable you to develop their content-based language knowledge, and, in turn, their future-ready skills.

If you are a language teacher, you will see why developing your students’ second language skills is more effective through CLIL than through conventional language teaching. You will also learn how to improve your students’ English language proficiency by embedding content-based language in your curriculum.

Programme Highlights

During this course, you will

- learn about CLIL – a competence-based approach to teaching and learning, where subjects are taught through the medium of a non-native language and language learning is integrated into the broad curriculum;
- consider the advantages of CLIL and review the four Cs that underlie and enable the dual function of this approach;
- examine why the use of CLIL is deemed essential for ‘the teacher and school of the future’;
- develop a working understanding of successfully integrating CLIL into your own teaching;
- evaluate and develop a range of interactive activities which will help you become more confident when teaching a subject in a second language;
- learn about the right focus of assessment when employing the CLIL methodology;
